Dental hygienists arrive

JOC Jon McMillan

The Branch Dental Clinic here is taking the uncertainty out of dental cleaning appointments. The clinic has moved away from its "call-back" appointment plan that had been in place for more than a year.

"We wanted to do away from the 'list' and give our patients something more definite," said Lt. Orbito Patangan, staff dentist at the Rota clinic.

In the past, patients who needed a cleaning were placed on a list and when an appointment became available the person at the head of the list was called. Due to staff shortages, it usually took from three to

CFC sweeps Rota

JOSN Justin Takasawa

The Combined Federal Campaign has kicked off its six-week, Navy-wide fundraiser, creating upcoming events for Sailors here at Naval Station Rota.

A new plan is in the works to get Sailors who wouldn't normally donate to the CFC to participate, said Petty Officer 1 "Class Ray Jaramillo, NSGA (N4) maintenance.

New event ideas, lead by Lt. j.g Sean Smith of NSGA Operations and other members of NSGA have spiced up the old campaign tactics, said Jaramillo.

In the wake of a successful bowling tournament, upcoming events include a three-on-three basketball tournament scheduled for October 29th, a base wide captain's choice golf tournament, November 5th and a 24-hour relay race for November 10th and 11th.

"They're events that are popular," said Smith. "People who give every year will continue to give every year, but it's the other seventy five percent that we want to get involved," he said.

"Basketball and running are things that people do anyway," said Jaramillo, "and this gives them a chance to do what they like and help out the CFC too."

There is no limit as to how many teams can participate in any of the events, said Jaramillo.

"We're looking for one hundred percent participation and at least one team per command in Rota," he said.

The CFC events are sponsored by NSGA, and we strongly encourage every command to participate. It cannot be a success without all of Naval Station Rota tenant commands, said Smith.

The basketball tournament will kick off at 10:30 a.m. at the gym, and will be refereed by Gunnery Sgt. Terry Cooper of Marine Security Forces Company. The donation per team is $15, said Smith. Trophies will be awarded to each member of the top three teams, he added.

A golf tournament will take place November 5th at the Naval Station golf course. The entry fee is $25 per person and $100 per four-man team.

There are no entry fees for the 24-hour relay race. Each command can make pledges for their individual teams. All of these events are open to the Spanish as

Security increases housing patrols

JOC Jon McMillan

After a slight increase in on-base housing breaks resulting, for the most part, in minor thefts, the Rota Security department has stepped up their housing patrols - putting two units on the beat, vice one - and are highlighting their 'home survey' program.

The program, available to both on and off-base residents, brings Security personnel to your home for a free and thorough home security inspection.

"We're going out there to identify discrepancies and point out things they can do on their own," said EM1 (SW) Robert Levensailor, from the department's crime prevention division. The survey will take about one hour and Levensailor said they will inspect doors, locks, windows, the housing perimeter and adjacent buildings. "We'll then make suggestions to the residents," Levensailor said.

In addition to getting information about potential weak-spots in your home security, the Crime Prevention department can also bring out their videocamera so residents can tape their belongings while their house is being surveyed. "We can assist them in ID-ing their equipment and explain the importance of having an inventory," said Levensailor. Security will provide the camera, but residents need to provide their own tape.

"We're hoping to promote awareness on and off base," said MM2 (SW) Stuart Melvin, also from the Security Crime Prevention unit. "These minor thefts can be happening for a variety of reasons and one is people may becoming more lackadaisical," he said.

"Crime does exist here, even though it's low," said Melvin.

Home Security Tips

Have a Home Survey done to identify security deficiencies

Check all outside doors, including upper floors also, and ensure they are metal or solid wood Ensure all doors have a tight fit to the frame. If they don't, install weather stripping
Ensure door hinges on outside doors are on the inside of the house

If a door contains a window, ensure it is at least 40 inches from a locking device
Ensure lock devices cannot be reached through a mail slot, delivery port or pet entrance
Ensure the entrance is well lit
Ensure all windows, including upstairs, have adequate locking devices in good repair

CAPTAIN'S corner

WITH CAPT. G.K. STAIR, JR., COMNAVACT, SPAIN

I want to thank the men and women of the NAVSTA for the outstanding comments and suggestions during Captain's Calls.

Once again, the results will be posted on the Rota homepage, probably in 3-4 weeks. For those who didn't have the opportunity to attend, and for our other commands and our community at large, remember there are many means to get your concerns or questions voiced, from the chain of command, to our monthly Joint Advisory Boards, to the CO's suggestion box located at the Galley, online at CO@CMC@NAVSTA.ROTA.NAVY.MIL, and the biweekly radio show on Hot 102.5.

There is no reason to be frustrated by a policy or process; request clarification, when needed, or voice your recommendation or concern.

Often times I feel our greatest challenge is communication. Part of that challenge is our community "turns over" so frequently, as do those in positions of responsibility. That is why we put so much emphasis on "pushing information," whether that be through the Coastline, the forums mentioned above, or the tenant command meetings. It is also the impetus behind the ongoing revamp of the Rota web page; the information's out there, and we want to make it as easily accessible as possible. Use these tools to stay abreast of current events, information and policy; and again, don't hesitate to make your recommendations known on how we can better provide for the mission and for our people.

Well done to LCDR Karen Pruett and the Navy Ball Committee for an outstanding evening last Friday celebrating our Navy heritage. Of particular note were your fundraising efforts which enabled many to attend this tradition for the first time. I doubt there will be anyone who'll forget our guest speaker, Captain Jack Fellowes, who brought an appreciation for life, honor, and freedom that few of us will ever attain. It was certainly a privilege to meet and hear from him.

Congratulations also to Coach Kinghorn and our DGF Admirals for your poise, perseverance, and character last Saturday. It would have been an exciting game either way, but victory is all the more rewarding, especially on Homecoming Day. You may be a young team, but you represented yourselves, your School and your community well.

Last weekend we had an unusual occurrence when a group of illegal immigrants landed at the beach adjacent to the Fuentabrivera gate. In an attempt to elude the Guardia Civil, many illegally accessed the Naval Station by climbing the perimeter fence, and dispersed throughout housing and the adjacent bulk fuel area.

The response by Spanish national police, Guardia Civil, Spanish Security and U.S. Security was quick, and in a matter of hours all who had accessed the facility were apprehended. There was never any danger to any Spanish or U.S. housing residents, though I know several were surprised by a couple of the trespassers who attempted to allude authorities by hiding within the residential area.

Security worked quickly with Navy Broadcasting to get announcements on the radio and the Blue Screen. We will probably never see a situation like this again, but I want to emphasize that whenever confusing events occur, tune to Hot 102.5 for updates, or call your respective duty officer for the "straight skinny." They will have the word from the NAVSTA CDO, or will call if it hasn't been received yet. The bottom line is, there is no reason for anyone to be in doubt of what may be occurring.

Finally, to our security forces, thanks for your quick response, and for safely and expeditiously remedying the situation. Well done.

well as American NavSta Rota sailors, stressed Jaramillo.

Smith believes that the NSGA sponsored bowling tournament and chili cook-off last Thursday have increased CFC awareness in Rota's junior sailors.

"Hopefully we can set a precedent for CFC drives and junior participation in the future," said Smith.

"None of these events would have been possible without the help of the MWR and athletics staff and Lisa Elko," he said.

Run/dribble for CFC Fund

NSGA will be hosting a Three-on-three basketball tournament, October 29th. Entry fees are $5 per person, $15 per team. All entry fees go directly to the Combined Federal Campaign Fund.

Not only do you get a chance at bragging rights and individual trophy plaques for the winning teams, but also you're helping a fantastic cause.

Prizes will be awarded to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place teams. Team slots are limited. To enter, call P.O. Daughtery, or fax 2430 or send entry form e-mail to

srdecon@hotmail.com

On November 10th, come join us at the "Hump day hump", a 24 hour relay race to benefit the CFC, at the track behind the gym. There are no entry fees. Pledges may be made by commands either by lap or mile. For more information Call P.O.

six months to get an appointment.

"That was a big problem for us and people in community didn't like it," said Patangan.

"This so-called recall system had its problems - patients would sometimes feel like they were brushed aside or totally forgotten.

"Weeks and months would pass and those requiring annual or semi-annual cleanings would not get treated," he said. With nine new dentists and a handful of dental technicians trained to give cleanings, the clinic is now able to schedule a cleaning appointment when a patient calls.

Patangan said the wait for a cleaning is now down to two to three weeks, as opposed to the waiting period of before.

"We have set aside two dental technicians and three to four hygienists a day for cleanings," said Patangan.

"The dental tech's take care of the more routine cleanings while the hygienists take care of more specialized, deep cleanings," he said.

"The situation is much better than it was," he said. Appointments can be made by calling the clinic at 3733.

Security, cont.

- Ensure locks are adequate and in good repair
- Windows should have security grills or screens
- Keep shrubbery and trees trimmed and ensure windows are free from concealment
- Do not leave ladders outside where they may be accessible
- Ensure all window areas receive adequate lighting
- Never hide a spare key outside, give it to a neighbor you can trust
- Lock windows and doors when you leave - even if it's just for a short while
- Get to know your neighbors and practice a Neighborhood Watch

Car Security Tips

- Lock all doors
- Remove all visible items - backpacks, sun shades, base passes
- Purchase only removable face or removable stereos
- Lock valuables in the trunk when out and about
- Park in well lit areas
- Do not leave car unattended for extended periods of time

DGF to take trip to Paris

Angelina Iannacone

When most people think of Paris, they think of the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, and EuroDisney. Students and adults from DGF High School will have the chance to visit all those places and more.

Auditions have been held, and talented students from the band and chorus have been chosen to participate in a concert at EuroDisney. One of the students, Sarah Harrison, was very enthusiastic, "I've never been to Paris. I'm really excited and I'm happy."

The vocalists who were selected are Ruth Brown, Leah Brumfield, Sarah Harrison, Angelina Iannacone, Luke Linebarger, and Kim Rosander.

The band members who made it are Joel Bignell, John Buckles, Maggie Buckles, Eric Flagg, Omar Flores, Trish Gillebeau, John Gromer, Mike Goddard, Jeff Halcomb, Mark Halcomb, Richard Johnson, Danny Kineke, Ben Sargent, Ira Sargent, Justin Sargent, Aaron Spatz, Steve Sullivan, Takeyra Talbot, and Ashley Widdon.

The upcoming trip is more than just 96 people crowded on buses thinking about all the fun they are going to have in Paris, though. The goal of the trip is to provide students with an opportunity to perform in a professional environment.

"We needed to find shared goals to help kids achieve higher in performances, something both the students and the school would want to do," said Mr. Mark Bignell, the music teacher at DGF High school.

Not only will the trip focus on preparing the students for the concert, but it will also improve student-teacher community relationships.

Something that Mr. Bignell regards as very important. We will experience a lot together and grow as a group," he added.

The interaction between students and teachers outside of the classroom will help to instill a mutual respect within it.

Because of the large amount of practice involved, students performing can earn a music letter based on interscholastic standards.

Fundraising started in April, and some students have already worked off all or most of the money needed to pay for the week-long trip. This is the fourth year the Music Club has sent students to Paris, and they have honed the entire process; people are not under as much pressure to come up with the money.

Without outside help, the trip could not be possible because, as Mr. Bignell says, this is a community project that enhances the education the school gives, and the students are better for the help of the community.

This experience will give students new insights into other aspects of over-seas living and, in general, it will broaden their view of Europe.

Although the focus of the trip is music, the students of DGF will learn a lot more.

The music that will be performed is from the Big Band Era, with songs by Duke Ellington, Glen Miller, and Tommy Darcy. Some examples of songs are Pennsylvania 6-5000, Don't Get Around Much Anymore, and It Don't Mean A Thing.

Hospital hosts 5K for breast cancer awareness

JOSN Justin Takasawa

The Naval hospital's health promotions department sponsored a 5k run at the fitness center last Thursday to raise awareness about breast cancer.

"We did this to just raise public awareness," said Petty officer 2nd Class Tracy Cornelius-Scott of the health promotions department.

"This is our first breast cancer awareness kickoff," she said.

"We felt that a run would be a great way to get public involvement," said Lt. Kathleen Hewitt, breast cancer initiative coordinator.

People from all over Naval Station Rota turned out for the race. There was a total of 64 runners and walkers.

"I'm here to walk for a good cause," said Teresa Schroth. "My goal is to just finish," she said.

Women were not the only ones supporting Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Many men kicked it into high gear for the cause.

"I like to support my spouse," said Gunnery Sergeant Anthony Tabron while warming up to join his wife, Tamika for the run.

Tabron was also there due to a personal encounter with breast cancer.

"My mom passed away four months ago due to breast cancer," said Tabron.

According to the National Breast Cancer Awareness Month web page, breast cancer is the leading cancer diagnosed in women.

"If a mother or daughter is diagnosed with breast cancer, not only does it affect them but it affects the entire family. Treatment is a very intense and emotional experience," said Hewitt.

The goal of the health promotions department is to get the information to the public so that people will know the facts and get check-ups on a regular basis, said Hewitt.

"If breast cancer is diagnosed early enough, it is almost one hundred percent curable," said Hewitt.

Next year, the health promotions department hopes to have another breast cancer run, said Hewitt. "We hope that twice as many people show up," she said.

Servicemembers and their families start the race last Thursday. Over 60 people turned out to show their support for Breast Cancer awareness.

Flight schedule

Iberia Company will recover the morning flight from Jerez to Madrid on November 1.

The flight will depart at 8:15 a.m. from Jerez and landing in Madrid airport at 9:10 a.m. According to the business association, the flight is very important for the Province of Cádiz.

The connection with Madrid is essential not only for the business people, but for the tourist field. Jerez is the only airport in the Province of Cádiz.

Spanish admiral Gains position

Spanish Fleet Admiral new Chief of the European Maritime Force

Francisco Rapallo Comendador, Spanish Fleet Admiral, is the new Chief of the European Maritime Force (EUOMARFOR). Rapallo substitutes the Portuguese Admiral Alexandre Reis Rodrigues.

The ceremony was held on board the aircraft carrier "Principe de Asturias" at the Rota Naval Base, last Thursday. The ceremony was presided by Admiral Antonio Moreno Barberá. EUOMARFOR was conceived to fortify the military capacity of the Western European Union in 1992.

The countries of Italy, France, Portugal and Spain form Euromarfor. According to Admiral Reis, Greece and Turkey will join Euroformar in a near future. Euroformar Headquarters will be located at the Rota Naval Base.

Moroccans immigrants land on base

Seventeen Moroccans immigrants, arrived at the "Admiral beach" in the Rota Naval Base, last weekend. Around 4 p.m. Saturday, some fishermen called the Civil Guard and informed them of the landing on the base of the immigrants. Spanish and U.S. security arrested them.

They arrived in a small motorboat, did not carry any documents and the local police of El Puerto took care of them.

On Sunday afternoon they were taken to Ceuta to be sent back to their homes. According to EFE the Shore Patrol on the base was looking for another 15 immigrants, who landed with the others arrested.

Housing Awnings

Las Palmeras residents are reminded to roll up their awnings when not at home or not using the awning. Heavy winds will damage the awnings and residents are responsible for the cost of repair.

Uniform Change

Naval Station, Rota, will change to the winter uniform November 1. The uniform of the day will be winter blue for E-6 and below and service khaki for E-7 and above, and there will be no optional period. You can wear your working uniform to and from work, while riding in a vehicle; however if in uniform while riding in a convertible, the top must be in the up position. Walking off-base in uniform is not authorized. Blues have been authorized for the Navy Ball. If you've got any questions, please contact EMC(M/SS/AW) Allan McLain at ext. 2444.

Carbon Monoxide Alarms

On-base residents who have not returned the old carbon monoxide alarms for the manufacturer's recall can drop them by Housing Self Help or contact their Housing inspector at ext. 4652 to arrange a pick up. The old alarms will be repaired and made available for off-base residents.

Housing Holiday Decorations

Las Flores residents are reminded to not penetrate the exterior walls of their homes when putting up holiday decorations. Holes in the exterior walls will compromise the weatherproof membrane inside the stucco treatment.

Base Hospital Visits DGF School: Supports National 5-A-Day Nutrition Month

D.G.F. Elementary School participated in the 5-A-Day for Better Health Program with activities and a nutrition challenge of their own. Hospital Dietitian Cindy Millard explained,

"5-A-Day is a nationwide nutrition campaign to encourage Americans to eat 5 or more servings of fruits and vegetables each day. It is sponsored by the American Cancer Institute and the Produce for Better Health Foundation."

Students were asked to track their consumption of fruits and vegetables for one week. At the end of that week, they celebrated with a team of 25 volunteers from the Naval Hospital who held

"I just loved it. The interaction we have with the school is great..." HM2 Goss classroom contests and rewarded those students that participated in the challenge. Each classroom learned more about the importance of fruits and vegetables to their health with games and contests, as well as decorating 5-A-Day T-shirts.

This activity has been anticipated since Marches National Nutrition month when the students also had the opportunity to decorate their own T-shirts.

"It's really cool when they come," a student told a new Rota arrival,

"We get to do fun activities and design our own T-shirts." The hospital staff felt the same way.

"I just loved it. The interaction we have with the school is great for both [volunteer and student], we both benefit," said HM2 Goss from the Pharmacy.

Korean War Medal Gains Approval

The Defense Department has signed an order allowing veterans of the Korean War to finally wear the Korean Service Medal.

The okay comes 48 years after the decoration was first offered. The Army barred its wear among U.S. troops back then and that old objection, which was based on the acceptance of foreign decorations in general, stood pat until just recently.

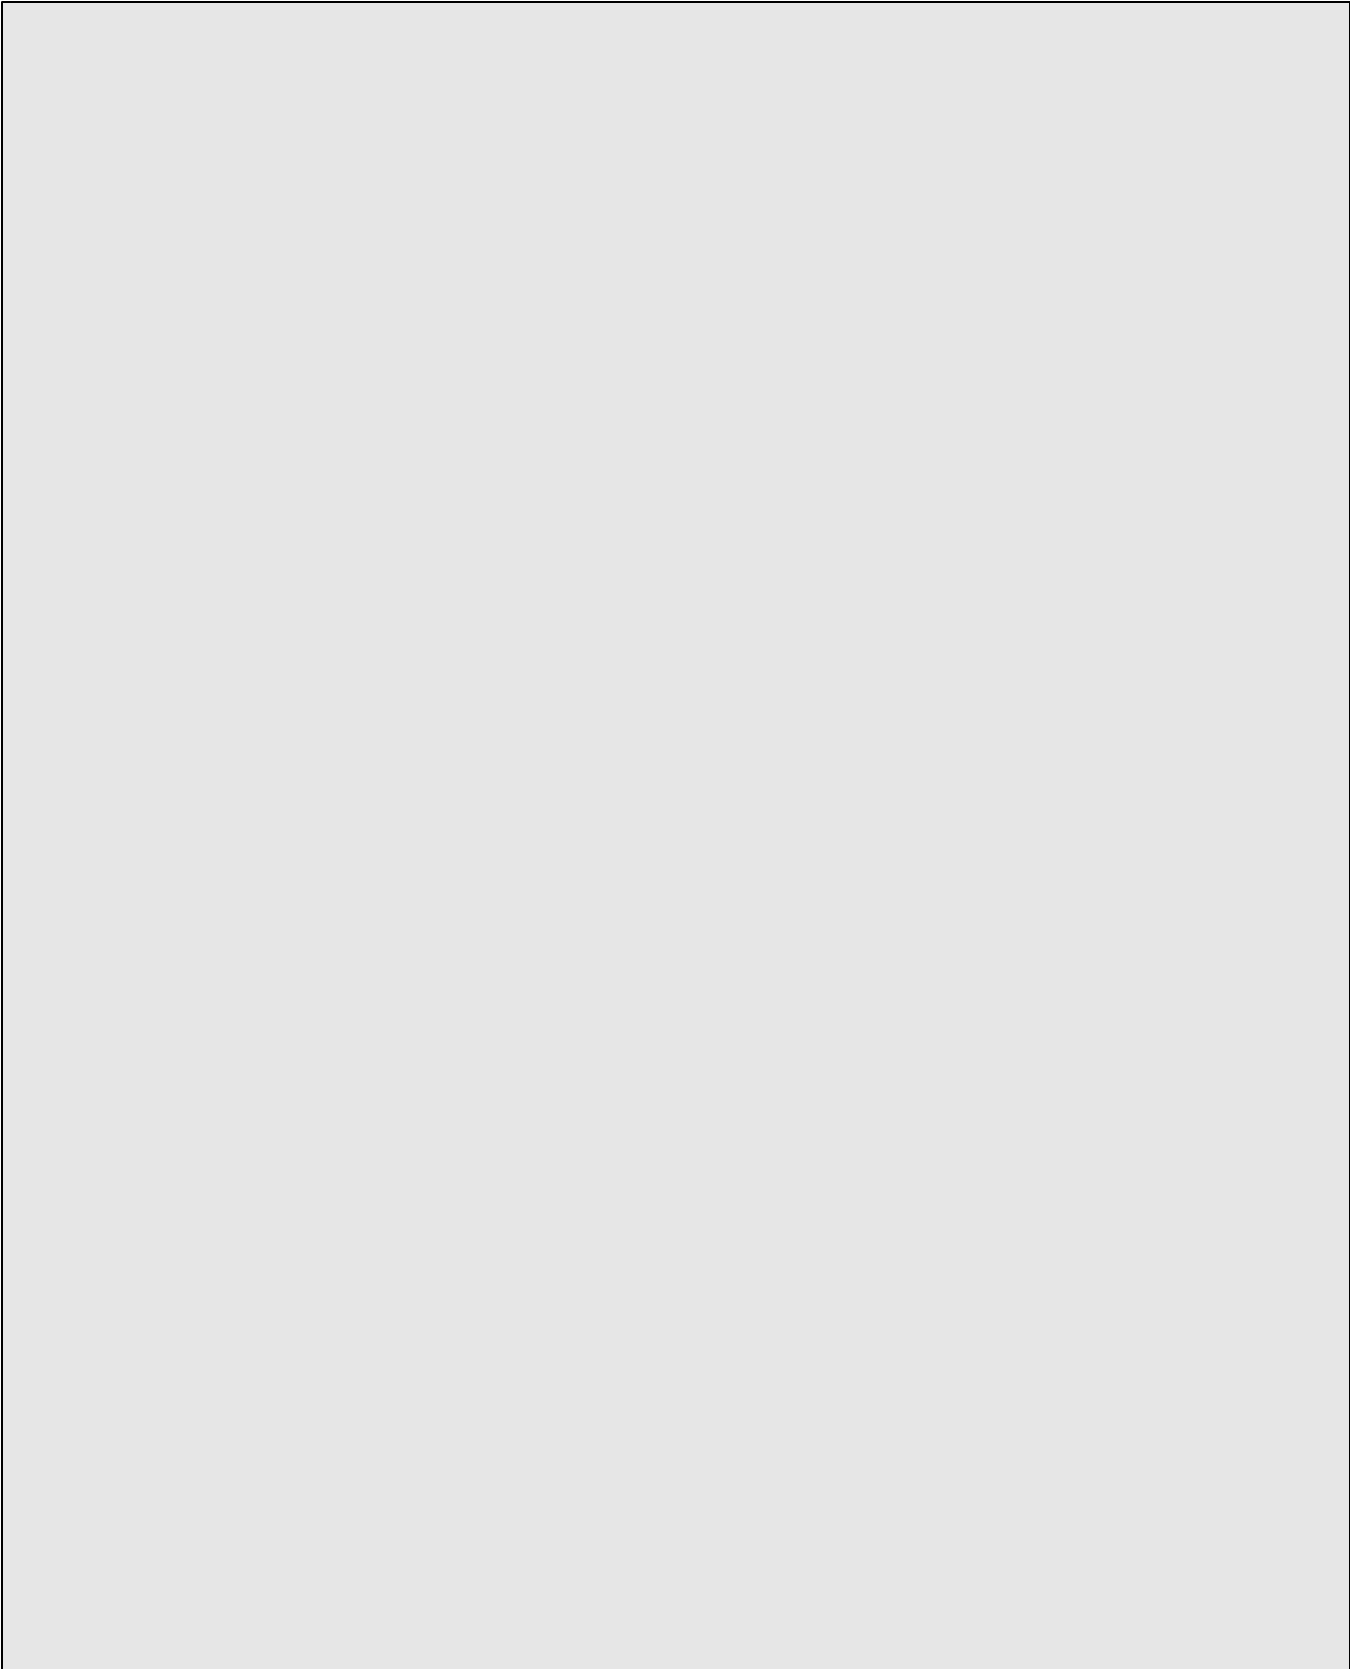

No word yet on availability or who is eligible — though the original eligibility criteria was participating a minimum of 30 consecutive days in the Korean War or 60 nonconsecutive days

COs to receive domestic violence training

Commanding officers will receive training on handling domestic violence cases under a provision of the recently-approved 2000 Defense authorization law.

They also will receive standard guidance on "factors to consider when determining appropriate action on substantiated allegations of domestic violence." A task force will be set up to make recommendations on specifics.

ROTA COASTLINE

College is living skills center

JOC Jon McMillan

There's a wealth of talent in Rota waiting to share their expertise and experience with you. From teaching Sevillana dancing to basic Yoga classes from beginning Spanish to English as a second language, Rota Community College is the community's center for learning practical skills for life.

"Rota Community College helps people enjoy their time in Spain," said Carolina Turner, program director for the college. "I think Rota Community College helps people become a part of the community – and not just the base community – but the community of Rota," she said.

Community College is really a misnomer. It's not truly a college. Sure, classes are formatted, taught by experienced teachers, and are informative, but there's no academic credits awarded and classes, said Turner, are a bit more free and lively.

"Rota Community College is really a skills learning center," she said. It's a place where one can learn how to cook real Spanish, or Mexican food, learn to dance Sevillana or Merengue and Salsa or pick up a foreign language.

Most classes only cost $25 for a four-week, 12-hour course. Classes are held twice per week for one and half-hours each session.

Each class is taught by someone from the Rota community and because RCC is the community's school, RCC is always looking for new instructors to share their particular expertise with others.

"They don't have to a bachelor's degree," said Turner.

"All they need is to have a special talent." That, and the desire to share it with others.

"I know that a lot of people have talent,

"I think Rota Community College helps people become a part of the community – and not just the base community – but the community of Rota,"

-Carolina Turner, program director but they're a little shy to teach," said Turner. Instructors at the school don't make much money, only a percentage of the enrollment fees. The rest of the money goes to supporting the school and the community.

Last year Turner said Rota Community College donated money to various community events and for the Navy Campus graduation ceremony. "We try to help out the community," said Turner.

Rota's blood drives

JOSN Justin Takasawa

The base hospital hosted a blood drive last Tuesday to support medical facilities here in Rota and throughout Europe and collected eight liters of blood from 19 people.

"We usually have a drive once a month, but if the need arises, we can do it anytime," said Petty Officer 2nd Class David Thomas.

"We provide our own blood supply," he said. "We announce the blood drive, set it up and do our own screening," said Thomas.

The laboratory screens for medical history, prescription medications and high-risk activities in their donors. If a donor doesn't meet the specific medical guidelines and criteria, he or she can not give blood.

The process is relatively painless, said Thomas. Although patients are strongly encouraged to eat well before they donate blood to avoid passing out.

After the blood is successfully collected, the laboratory technicians "spin it down"; a process in which they remove blood cells from plasma.

Once separated, the blood is screened for six viruses and then shelved for hospital use or sent out to various military medical facilities around Europe.

"We released five units from this blood drive to Lanstuhl, Germany," said Thomas.

Although only 19 units were collected during the drive, during a combat situation the hospital can collect up to 500 units per day, said Thomas.

"Hopefully more people will turn up next month," said Thomas. "It's our blood supply so if your kids or your wife need blood, you'd want it on the shelf."

Man's best friend: the military working dogs

JOSN Justin Takasawa

Sniffing out drugs and explosives, searching through buildings and vehicles, tracking criminals or foreigners who end up at the wrong port; a typical day at the Military Working Dog Kennels?

Maybe not all in a days work but this is the general working environment for the security dog handlers says Petty Officer 1st Class David Robins.

"We do detective training, patrols, aggression training, scouting and searches with our dogs," said Robins.

There are currently eight teams, he said. Each team consists of one handler and one dog. Four of the teams are designated to seek explosives while the other teams search for narcotics.

"The dogs that are trained for narcotics can identify four different odors and the explosive teams can identify nine," he said.

During a search, the handlers touch points on a car or in a building, that they want their dogs to sniff. When an odor is positively identified as either narcotic or explosive, the dogs respond by sitting.

"The reason that we have the dogs sit is to maintain good leash control," said Petty officer 2nd Class Ronald C. Jones. "We can't have the dogs nudging a box with a bomb in it, so we have them sit."

"We also look for something called J.N.D., or just noticeable differences, in the dog. They vary with every dog but are crucial in the search," he added.

One team, made up of Petty officer 3rd Class Donna Rutkowski and her dog Edward, uncovered narcotics in the Camp Mitchell area in September and also discovered some on a ship during its recent port visit here in Rota.

The Military Working Dog division often does training around Naval Station Rota. The handler will hide narcotics and explosives on vehicles or in buildings and it is up to each dog to sniff them out, said

Robins.

"When we do training with explosives we put out signs to warn people of the dangers," said Robins.

After Robins' dog, Rakker found a hidden sample of Heroin at the motor vehicle registration lot during a training exercise Tuesday, he awarded him with a squeaky toy and a few minutes of play.

"The handlers and the dogs know the difference between work and play," he said. "If you make it fun for the dog, he'll work harder."

A bond between dog and handler is necessary, said Robins. When a handler first reports to the Military Working Dog Kennel here in Rota, he or she must take a week to build up rapport, said Robins.

"Grooming is a great way to develop a bond with the dog," said Robins.

But the bond doesn't last a lifetime as it does in the civilian working dog environment. Handlers and dogs are constantly interchanging due to transfers, said Robins.

"The military working dog is considered a tool, but if you don't like dogs this is not the type of duty for you," said Robins. "The dog is an extension of yourself but he is also a partner."

It takes 12 weeks to achieve the minimum training and knowledge it takes to responsibly handle a dog, said Robins. Every handler and dog comes through Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

"The Air Force does the pre-screening to determine whether or not the dog has the right disposition for further training," said Robins. Lackland Air Force Base procures the animals through renowned breeders who train the dogs with everyday command such as "sit", "stay" and "no".

After a lengthy career and an onset of old age, Lackland is where the animals may end up after they're no longer suitable to perform the job, said Robins.

"If the dog is still healthy but just too old to do it's duties, it may be sent to Lackland to work with instructors."

In the end, the military working dog is a crucial element in the security department here in Rota. Without the K-9's strong odor detection, seeking and disposing of drugs and bombs would be very difficult.

The Military Working Dogs division will continue to train and search for dangers in Rota and also support the secret service within the European theater.

Rakker sniffs out narcotics during a training exercise at the vehicle registration parking lot. His handler, Petty Officer 1st Class David Robins keeps an eye on his dog to make sure that he is thorough. Robins warns never to approach or try to pet the working dogs because they can be dangerous.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Donna Rutkowski and her dog, Edward, search outbound vehicles at the Rota gate. Rutkowski and Edward were responsible for the two recent narcotics finds here in Rota.

It's okay to dream

Maj. General C.L. Stanley

MARINE CORPS AIR GROUND COMBAT CENTER Twenty-nine Palms, Calif. (Oct. 8)

— One of my favorite movies, "Somewhere In Time," involves the power of dreams. Christopher Reeve, who plays the part of a '70s urban American, falls in love with the images and life of the attractive and talented Jane Seymour, who actually lived before Reeve's character in the film was born. Reeve's passion was so great that he actually went back in time to be with the love of his life.

This is somewhat oversimplifying a great love story, but it captures the essence of the power of our dreams and ideas. Our artists seem to do it best, sharing their passion with us "common-folk."

The art of photography, for example, gives us unique insights. We can actually be there behind the camera with the photographer, literally somewhere in time, and capture that moment forever.

Architects can visualize buildings that don't exist, and engineers can visualize highways that can transport millions safely. Child prodigies seem to have that special gift of vision. Musicians, for example, who at the age of 8, can compose music...the power of vision being put into action.

The power of dreams is even evident in our leaders. The best leaders seem to possess a certain charisma, an ability to connect with and motivate others. People gravitate toward them. During the Civil War, Colonel Joshua L. Chamberlain had it. When he spoke, people listened. His personal example inspired thousands to fight with passion. His passion transcended the military, eventually leading him to serve four terms as the Governor of Maine.

Joshua Chamberlain clearly wasn't clairvoyant. He couldn't see the future. What he did have was the belief in what could be.

He could dream, and he was gifted enough to be able to share his vision with others.

The ability to put vision and ideas into concrete form, and the absolute purity of their passion makes our most talented dreamers stand out. Steven Spielberg comes immediately to mind. Many of his childhood fantasies continue to capture the imaginations of millions.

During World War II, the colorful and charismatic military leader, General George S. Patton Jr., studied history with passion. He didn't just study history; he lived it...internalized it, and quite literally visualized it in his mind. During World War II, he was able to anticipate his enemies' moves because he could visualize a battlefield. Actually bring it to life.

He could see the enemy in 3-D, even though they weren't right there in front of him. Dreaming contributed mightily to his many

This week we have another new advertiser from the Centro Comercial in Vistahermosa - Pancho Villa's. The restaurant is located right behind "Burger Stop" in the center section of the shops and it offers authentic Baja California style Mexican food. Wendy Walker manages and operates it and also does the cooking. She is a native of San Diego and grew up on Baja California Mexican food. After hearing from numerous friends and acquaintances that she should open a restaurant, she decided to do so and did! The chips she serves are home-made as are all the sauces. Her specialties include fish tacos and margaritas as well as enchiladas and quesadillas.

Another new ad this week is La Tienda on page 3. La Tienda makes it easy for you to share some of your favorite Spanish products with folks back home! They have all the appropriate import and shipping licenses for a variety of food items including - jamón! Visit their web site and find out all the things they have to offer. You are sure to find a lot of great ideas for the upcoming Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Have you got your costume ready for the Halloween party at the Casino on the 29th? The prizes are: 50,000 pesetas, 30,000 pesetas and 20,000 pesetas for first, second and third place. There will be lots of surprise prizes as well, so get creative! Activities will start at 9:30 p.m. The entrance fee is 1,000 pesetas. You can get tickets at the Casino or at Paco's Travel in Rota. Also at the Casino, the fall movie cycle starts this Sunday. The schedule follows:

Fall Movie Schedule

Casino Bahía de Cádiz

October 24 The Heirs, Stefan Ruzowitzky, Austria, 1998
October 31 Lisboa, Antonio Hernández, Spain, 1998
November 7 Dreamers, Tom Tykwer, Germany, 1997
November 14 A Tale of Autumn, Eric Rohmer, France, 1998

Dec. 5 Don, Abolfaj Jafili, Iran, 1998
Dec. 12 Slam, Marc Levin, USA, 1998

All movies start at 8:30 p.m. in the theater at the Casino. Entrance is 300 pesetas and all movies are shown in their original language.

Let's hear from you! Send your inputs to me by fax to 956-542997 or by e-mail to COASTPUB@santandersupernet.com

MWR Scream scene returns

(Map of Halloween Scene '99)

The MWR Halloween scream scene is coming to Rota once again.

The base-wide events will run October 29 and 30 and are open to everyone aboard Naval Station Rota.

"There will be trick or treating, a magic woods haunted hayride and other things for kids," said MWR marketing manager Eric Uzenac.

The hay ride will run from 8:30 p.m. until midnight and the trick or treat is happening from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m., said Uzenac. Those events are for the older kids.

The younger children can enjoy 'The Wonderful World of OZ' at the CDC, for a Halloween celebration of their own. The 'Fright Sites', Halloween booths from every command, can be found at the Feria grounds.

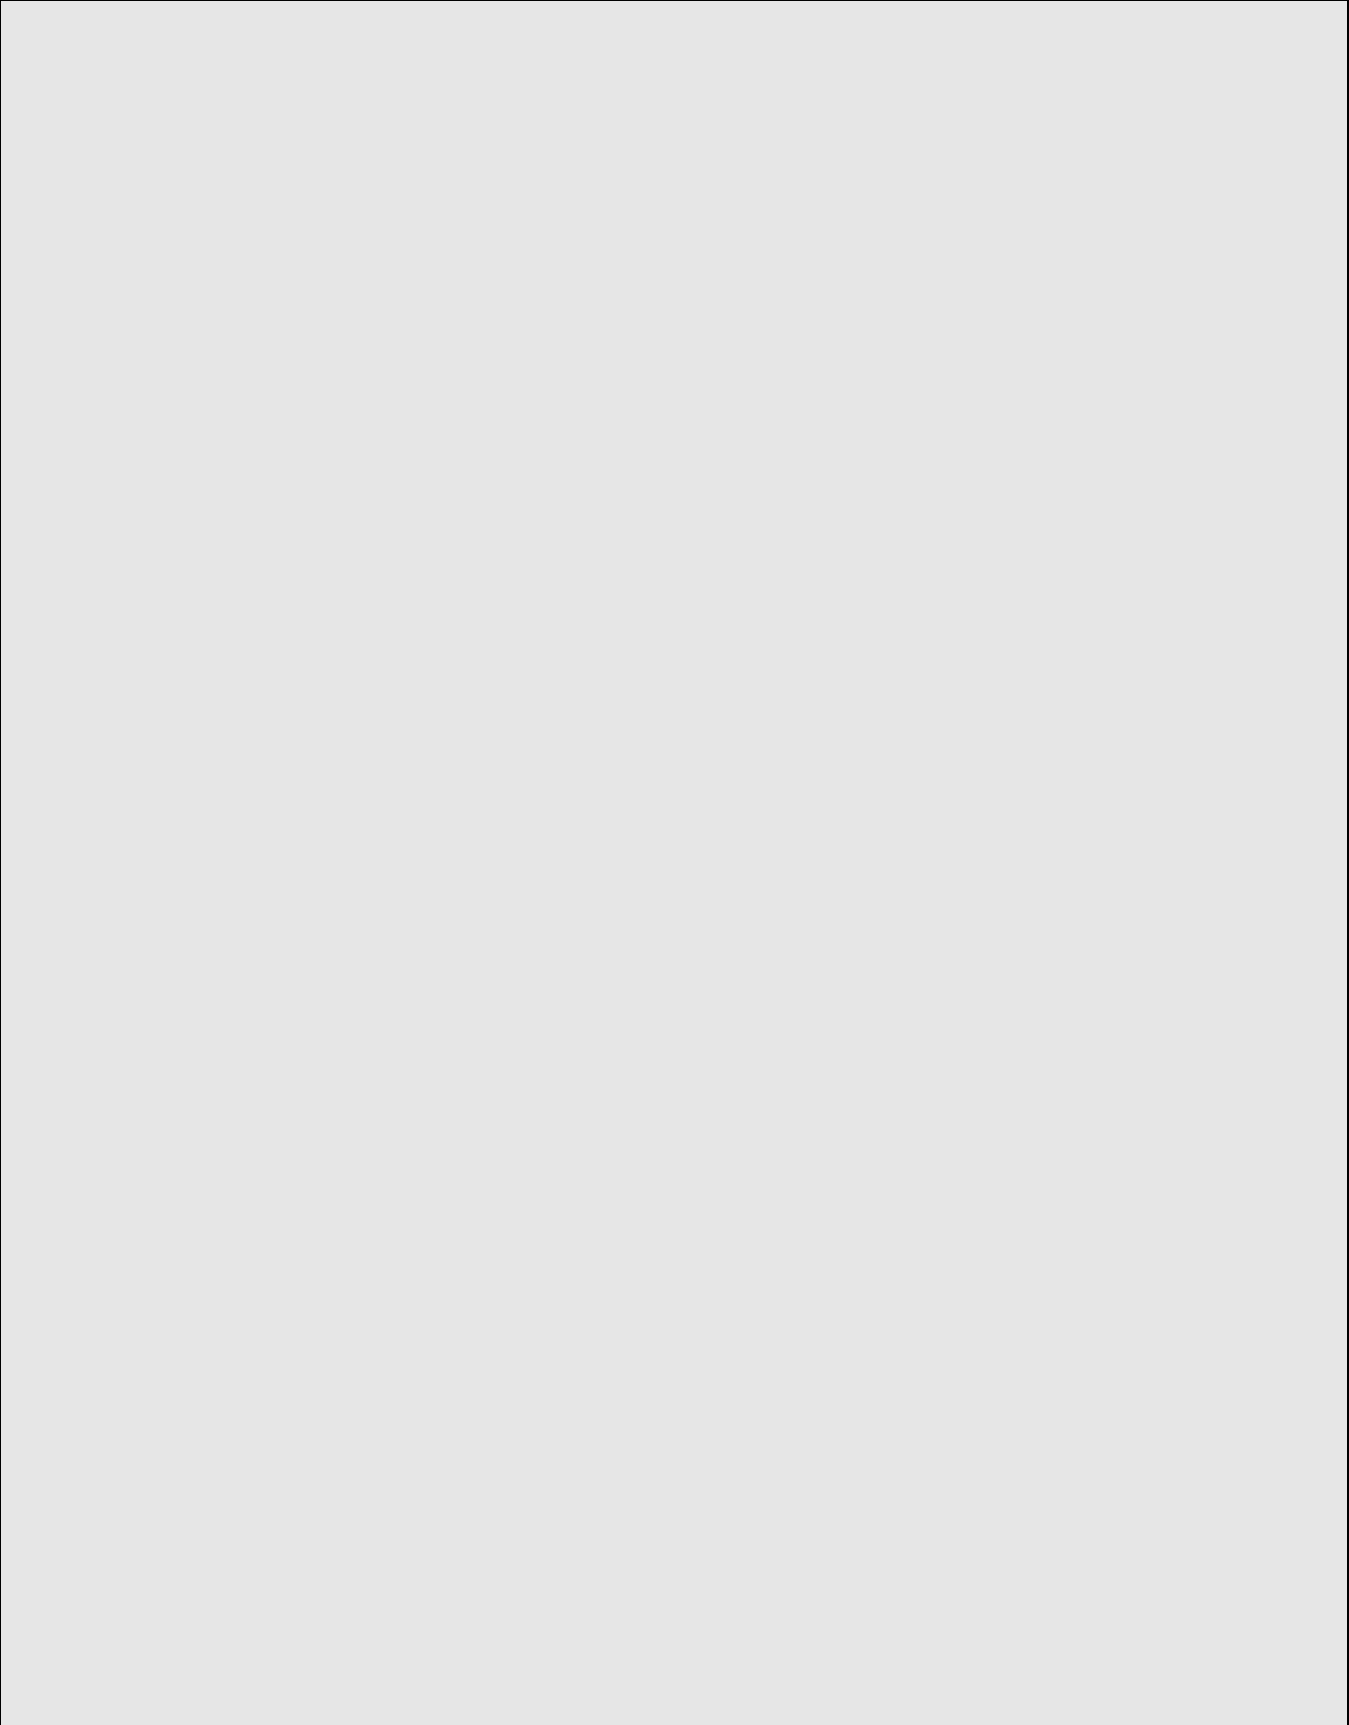

MWR will be providing plenty of candy for the Halloween bash and also to each individual fright site.

Judges will choose the top sites on the 30th.

Also for the older crowd is a command viewing of the Rocky Horror Picture Show that will top off the evening of October 30 at midnight. MWR will provide toast and toilet paper for throwing, said Uzenac.

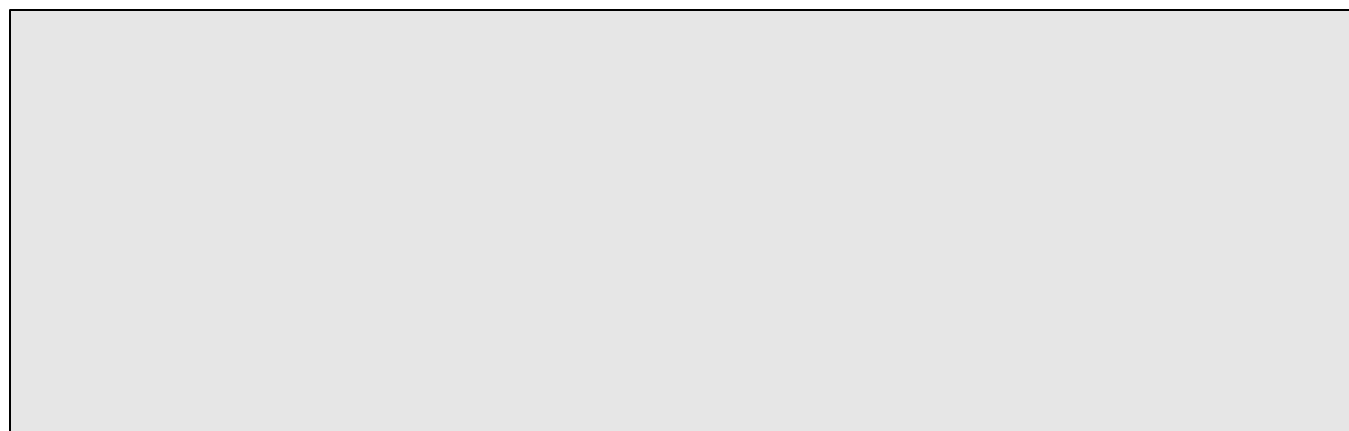

All in all it should be a great time for everyone, said Uzenac.

Medina

Sidonia

The ancient city
at our footsteps...

JOC Jon McMillan

Typical. That's what most people say about Medina Sidonia. It's a typical Andalusian town, with a history of Phoenician, Roman, Visigoth, Arab and Spanish rulers. Its architecture shows it all too, and, that, my friend, is not very typical.

There are two easy ways to get to Medina Sidonia:

Medina Sidonia...

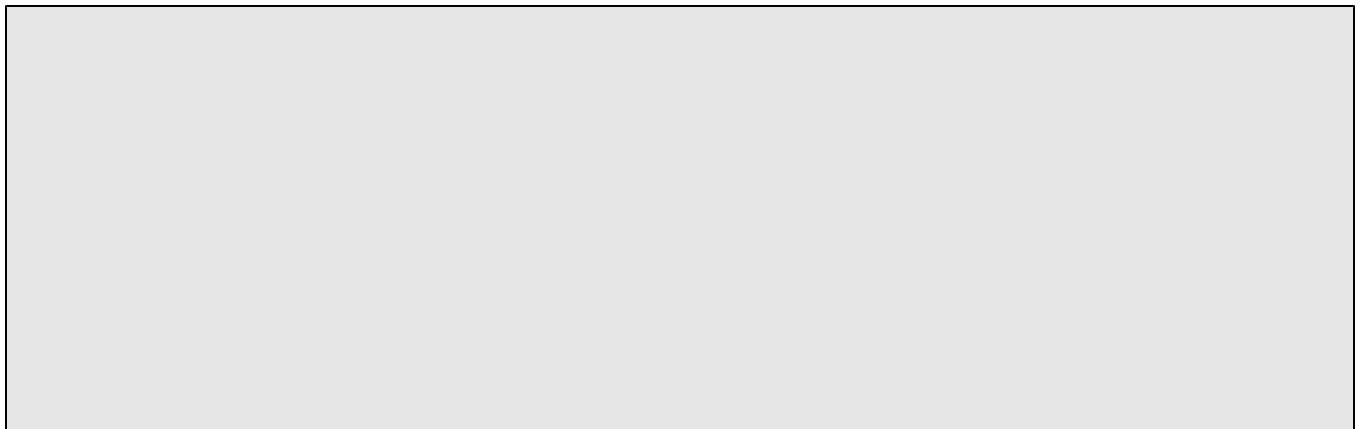

—one through Chiclana, via the NIV and then on the Medina Sidonia road and two — from the El Portal road, the one that runs south from the Casino at El Puerto. Both routes take about 45 minutes to one hour — the El Portal road being the most visually pleasing.

The city itself sits atop a huge outcrop of a mountain in this hilly, bull-infested region of Andalucia. In fact, the city is kind of like the major city of the fighting bull region of the Andalucia. Medina is known here for the fighting bulls raised nearby and for the pastries made in the city.

In addition to its culinary and bullfighting fame, Medina hosts a wealth of interesting architecture. The city has an interesting underground Roman sewer system – open to the public from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the winter – to a 16th century church, the Iglesia Mayor – open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 to 8 p.m. in the winter.

This is a city on the move. New tourist signs, a new water treatment plant and a lot of general cleaning, and upkeep is ongoing today. New roadways, including a widening of the road from Chiclana to Medina and a partial autopista from Jerez to Medina are being constructed now.

There's only one slight problem with the modernization of the city. The new water treatment plant has been built on the site of Medina's 13th century castle ruins. Granted, there's nothing at the top of the 339 meter mountain, save a few ancient ruins, but, the new water plant seems a bit out of place. But, with the new plant came new roads, and it's now possible to take two different roads to the castle ruins or walk on a new sidewalk from the Iglesia Mayor to the ruins.

These improvements in the walled medieval section of the town make it easy to explore and easy to reach some of the most interesting sites in the city.

If you go to Medina though, don't spend all your time at the top of the hill – the city has a lot more to offer. From the Roman ruins beneath the city – first found in the 1960s and opened to the public in the 1990s – to the St. Christopher Nunnery, famous for its pastry shop.

Across from the Iglesia Mayor, at the top of the city, is the City Hall. Maps and a tourist guide in English is available. It'll list all the major sites to see in the city. This is a great day trip from the base that showcases all of Andalusia's rich history in a compact, easy to see, and typical fashion. Medina Sidonia is a great introduction to how history has shaped Andalusian towns.

Community news and information

To all concerned: DGF Elementary School has the below listed volunteer programs available for interested volunteers:

After School Scholars Program: The Navy Family Service Center is recruiting volunteers to tutor children in grades 1 through 6 for the After School Scholars Program. This program is offered on Thursdays from 1530-1630. Children will be grouped together by either subject matter or grade level. This program runs from 21 October through March 2000. If you are interested in becoming a tutor contact Kathy Arcement at x3232.

Adopt a Class Program: I don't have all of the information on this program yet. Ms. Spacy will be calling me to tell me more. What I do know is that Commands go into the schools to talk with the children about the Navy, History or anything of interest to you. I believe it's done once a week, and the most exciting thing about this is ... it's an exciting teaching tool for our children. I will give further information on this program once I hear from Ms. Spacy.

If you are interested in volunteering for the After School Scholars Program, there will be an Orientation Meeting on 21 Oct at 1445 in the Parents Connection Room at DGF Elementary.

If you have any questions, I'd be happy to assist in any way possible. Also, let me add...I know that many of us don't have school aged children, but here are some of the classes that I'm interested in adopting. Please let me know your choices as well:

TEACHER
GRADE

Mr. Levy Kindergarten (My daughter, Eboni, is in this class)

Mrs. Reberdito Fourth (My daughter, Jessica, is in this class)

Rota Homeschool Association

The next meeting of the Rota Homeschool Association will be Friday, October 22, 2 p.m. in the Chapel Hall. The children will be presenting "Historical Skits and Reports on Explorers". Homeschooling in Spain provides you with a wonderful opportunity to truly experience the world as your classroom. We enjoy meeting monthly for the children to present their work and to encourage each other. For more information please call Lisa Osgood, 956-54-0731.

Take Off Pounds Sensibly

Come and visit TOPS if you are tired of struggling to lose weight by yourself. We are an international non-profit weight loss support group. We meet at the Navy Hospital Family Practice Conference Room. Weigh-in is 6:30 - 7:00 PM and the meeting is from 7:00 - 8:00 PM. For more information please contact Sandy at X 2119 or 956-85-5529 or email her at sandy_lipsey@hotmail.com or call Suzanne at 956-84-0902.

If you have any questions please call me at 956-84-0185.

Due to a scheduled staff meeting, the Housing Resource Center will open for business at 1000 hours on 22 Oct

99. Please plan your business accordingly.

Order of the eastern star scholarship
The 1999 Educational Essay Scholarship offered by starpoint Study Club, Order of the Eastern Star is accepting applications for two scholarships. Spouses and family members of active duty members are eligible. Application packets must be received no later than November 5. ...to dream, cont.

accomplishments.

Three-D thinking, and being able to see what isn't there. Taking one course of action and creating a dozen. More importantly for military leaders in our peacetime environment is being able to see the real potential of our men and women. Being able to literally see a Marine or Sailor who might be below average today, but capable of excelling tomorrow. Seeing a young private or seaman as the governor of their home state, or as a corporate executive, despite the fact that they may appear to be rather ordinary today.

I dream about leaders who can see potential, when the potential isn't so obvious. Leaders who are confident in their abilities and thus, confident in the abilities of those under them. Leaders who have made their share of mistakes and who are therefore more tolerant of the mistakes of others. I can actually see a Navy and Marine Corps where the word "teamwork" is fully embraced in its purest sense.

I'm not naive! I have no intention of getting an ulcer while searching for the perfect world. I can just see it, and I enjoy doing what I can to help others live their dreams.

Christopher Reeve's journey back in time to personally meet Jane Seymour (AKA Miss McKenna) is fiction; but, the message about dreaming comes through loud and clear. If you can see it, you can live it. Think about it.

New parent support classes

Unfortunately, babies don't come with instructions! Many people begin the job of parenting armed with enthusiasm, high hopes, and parenting skills, yet they may not be ready for the tremendous demands that caring for a young child can impose.

New Parent Support (NPS), located at the Navy Family Service Center, can help. NPS provides a voluntary, no-cost program for expectant and new parents. Services include: health education, infant and toddler growth and development information, resource library, and connections with community resources, prenatal and postnatal home visits, parenting workshops, and a Parents and Tots playgroup.

The Parents and Tot playgroup is an opportunity for parents to connect with other parents who have similar concerns and experiences. It is a time to learn from each other. Unfortunately, babies don't come with instructions!

RELIGION

with Chaplain Steve Beyer

You probably don't know Joyce Roush. Christopher Bienik certainly didn't. Chris is a 13 year old boy who needed a kidney. He now has one, thanks to Joyce. She is the first person known to have donated a kidney to a total stranger.

Her physician thought she was crazy when she first suggested it. After all, no one had ever done it before! A parent would gladly give a kidney to his or her child. You would probably give a kidney to a relative, maybe even to a close friend. But to a total stranger?

Joyce saw things in a simpler light. On the day of the surgery she remarked, "You know what I thought about last night? That last night was Christopher's last night of dialysis. For a few days of discomfort there's a little boy who's gonna have a normal life. Its not a very big cost for a pretty big gain."

Joyce Roush knew that what matters in life is not what you get, its what you give.

Since this story made news last month, others have followed her example. Maybe you can follow her example.

It doesn't take a kidney to give something back to our world. There is someone right now who needs you. A child at school who needs a tutor, a shipmate who needs a friend, a little boy or girl who needs a big brother or big sister, a team that needs a coach.

What do you have to give? Remember, what matters in life is not what you get, its what you give.

Say it to chaplains in confidence

Who do you talk to when you have a problem? Your spouse, parent, friend, shipmate or command? Depending on the problem, any one of those people might be just right.

But sometimes there are things that you don't want to discuss with your wife. Or your mother, friends, shipmate or command. Sometimes you want to talk to someone and know for certain that the conversation will go nowhere. That you can speak confidentially.

You can!

You have a unique relationship with your chaplain. Its called "privileged communication". When you speak with a chaplain in his capacity as spiritual advisor one-on-one, in person and in private and ask that your conversation be confidential, it is. And it's guaranteed by law. That's your right!

Whether it's a pastoral act of "confession", getting something "off your chest" or simply getting a "sanity check", the same rule applies. And that's even more important when you're overseas and some of your stateside outlets aren't available.

There are circumstances when privileged communication does not apply. When you're speaking to a chaplain as a friend or in his capacity as a Naval officer, for instance. Or when you're speaking about an issue which you have discussed with others. The best advice is to clarify the nature of the conversation at the outset.

One more important note: that confidentiality extends to the Religious Program Specialists as well. When you call (or come into) the chaplains' offices, they are trained to respect your privacy and insure that you receive prompt, courteous service.

RCIA/Re-Membering

The Roman Catholic Chapel Community will offer an RCIA/Re-Membering class beginning 21 October. This class will meet each Thursday night in the chapel hall from 7-8:00 p.m., through the month of May, 2000.

What is RCIA? The letters stand for "Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults".

This class offers a wonderful opportunity to learn about the Roman Catholic faith.

Its designed for adults who want to learn the "whys" and "hows" of the faith (especially in mixed-faith marriages) renew and reaffirm your faith, prepare for baptism and confirmation.

Re-Membering is an aspect of the class which acts as a "refresher" for those who have been away from the church/worship for some time.

To sign up or ask any further questions, please call the chapel at x2161 and ask for Valerie Sasso.

Dog of Flanders (PG)

Drama; Jon Voight, Jason

Robards, Jesse James, Jack Warden (100 mins.)

A young aspiring artist nurses a dog back to health. The dog inspires the young man to survive terrible hardships.

Mickey Blue Eyes (PG-13)

Comedy; Hugh Grant, Jeanne

Tripplehorn, James Caan

A Manhattan art dealer is engaged to an art teacher who seems perfect until she reveals that her father is a Mafia boss. In order to win her hand, he embarks on a mission to thwart the Mob but, within days, is laundering money witnessing murder and masquerading as the notorious mobster "Mickey Blue Eyes."

The Astronauts Wife (R)

Thriller; Johnny Depp, Charlize Theron (110 mins)

A spine-chilling thriller about a woman whose marriage to an astronaut mysteriously disintegrates after a freak accident in space. Astronaut Spencer Armacost is rushed back to Earth and revived after a routine mission goes awry, only to discover that something truly horrific took place while he was up in space.

Three Kings (R)

Thriller; George Clooney, Mark Wahlberg, Ice Cube, Spike Jonze (111 mins.)

A small group of American soldiers in Iraq at the end of the Gulf War are determined to steal a huge cache of gold reputed to be hidden somewhere near their desert base. Finding a map they believe will take them to the gold, they embark on a journey that leads to an unexpected moral dilemma and the true meaning of heroism.

Inspector Gadget (PG)

Comedy; Matthew Broderick
In this live-action, big-screen adaptation of a popular television cartoon, Broderick stars as a gadget-wielding, bumbling detective.

Teaching Mrs. Tingle (PG-13)

Comedy; Helen Mirren, Marisa Coughlan, Barry Watson
Leanne Watson has always done the right thing. Her only ticket out of town is the scholarship that goes to her school's top student. All she needs is an "A" in history. There's just one problem, her history teacher has terrorized the students for some 20 years. She must outsmart the teacher with the very rules she created.

Admirals rally to win homecoming 39-33

With the greatest DoDDs football program community support behind them, Team Rota rallied from 33-19 in the third quarter to beat the Defending Division III Champions, Alconbury Dragons 39-33.

The win evened the Admirals conference record to 1-1, setting up a conference showdown at Menwith Hill, England this Saturday.

Despite four turnovers, the Fightin' Admirals offense pumped out play after grueling play and all in all "never gave up".

The offense unleashed their best, holding nothing back and, scoring with the "Single Wing", a direct fullback snap, special running escort, and through the air formation.

The Admiral's were lead by Senior fullback, Alfonso Washington, who gained 210 yards on 15 carries and 3 touchdowns, and Freshman wide receiver Nick Council who had 3 receptions for 60 yards and 2 touchdowns.

Senior Erick Andujar also had a big day totaling 23 yards on 2 receptions and 53 yards on a kickoff return.

Both teams hit the ground running, each scoring touchdowns during the fast paced and evenly-matched first quarter.

Additionally, Nick Council, with the help of his Special Team blocking, accumulated 145 kickoff return yardage which included an 80 yard touchdown.

Much of the credit goes out to the offensive line, anchored by Senior and Captain Joe Johnston, Dustin Mills, Brent Gaylord, Taureen Lynch, James Basset, Adam Santiago, Kyle Rosander, Kyle Robbins, and Omar Flores; who got the blocking job done.

The game winning score started with a key defensive play by outside linebacker, Adam Santiago.

Deep in their own territory, Alconbury decided to go to the air. With less than two minutes remaining and the score being tied at 33, Adam Santiago out jumped the Alconbury receiver and intercepted the pass causing the Dragons only, but very crucial, turnover.

With first down on the Alconbury 30 yard line, the Admirals commenced a blood and guts drive to take all. Andy Nowacki aired a pass in the direction of senior Erick Andujar, but the pass was picked off by the Alconbury defensive back.

However, Mr. Andujar would not allow such an occurrence, stripping the ball out of the defender's hands, he kept the drive alive.

With the ball first and goal from the 10, the Admirals ran three consecutive running plays. With fourth and goal on the one-yard line, the Admirals called a timeout.

In the end, the Fightin' Admirals came out on top with a score of 39-33 and a grand homecoming finish.

sports talk

with Russ Gambrel

Dangling modifiers aside, I'm not exactly sure what a hokie is. I don't know what a hokie eats, I don't know what a hokie reads or even how one mates. Come to think of it, I don't even know what a hokie looks like. I DO know, however, that a hokie knows how to play football. As proof, look no further than last weekend's pummeling of the 16th-ranked Syracuse Orangemen by Virginia Tech. 62-7. It was the greatest shutout victory in the history of college football. And even though I promised my buddy Rich Johnston that I wouldn't say anything that might "jinx" them, I must state the following: The 1999 Virginia Tech Hokies are the greatest team in the history of college football. No team before them or any team to come will ever match the greatness of the 1999 Virginia Tech Hokies. The 1999 Virginia Tech Hokies will –without a shred of doubt– become national champions. Rich Johnston of the Housing Office (see Rich...I told you I wouldn't jinx 'em) guarantees this. Let's roll...

By far, the biggest fan "screw-gee" in professional sports is the contract holdout. It serves no other purpose than to disable a team and infuriate a team's fanbase. Witness the case of Seattle's star wide receiver Joey Galloway. Until this season, the only thing most of us knew about Joey Galloway is that he scores us loads of points in fantasy football and is a weekly staple of ESPN's Sunday evening highlights. Much like Chris Warren before him, he seemed to quietly devastate defensive backfields all season long while playing in one of the more obscure NFL cities. The press found other, louder wideouts to interview (Keyshawn Johnson, Michael Irvin, etc.) and we just sat back and admired Galloway from afar. Then came the holdout.

Despite being under contract for the season, Galloway opted to ignore his (legally binding) commitment to the team and the fans by sitting out training camp. He is currently watching the season from his couch while his teammates struggle to stay in the race for the AFC West title. What a jerk. He is the definition of professional sports greed. When Seattle came to the table with a very serious and very respectable offer of $35 million,

CFC GOLF TOURNAMENT

A golf tournament will be held at the Naval Station Golf Course November 5th. The format will be a Four Person Team Scramble - "Captain's choice". Check-in time will be 9:30 a.m. for a shotgun start at 10:30 a.m.

The entry fee is $25 per person ($100 per team) which will include Green Fees, prizes and awards, a cookout (BAR-B-QUE) after completion of play, and a contribution to Naval Station Rota Family Support and Youth Programs through CFC.

Prizes will be awarded to the first, second, third and last place teams. A beverage cart will be provided, and individual mulligans and team string can be purchased at check-in, with the proceeds going to CFC.

The tournament is limited to the first 36 paid teams. Individual golfers (singles) will be combined to form teams. For more information you can call P.O. Andrews or LTJG Smith at Ext. 3128.

You can sign up for the tournament at the golf course.

Galloway turned it down for no other reason than the fact that such a deal would not make him the highest paid receiver in football. Ugh.

I know it will never happen in my lifetime, but I hope that someday a team would put their foot down and simply take a player to court. If Seattle sued Galloway for breach of contract, it would be an open-and-shut case. He signed a legally binding contract to play football this year and is in obvious violation of this agreement. From a legal standpoint, Galloway's nonperformance is a slam dunk. The guy has no excuse not to play. The long-term consequences for Seattle, however, make litigation a much more hazardous option.

Hypothetically, Seattle could force Galloway to honor his current contract and play out the 99/2000 season. The problem lies in what comes next. By filing suit, the Seahawks would be kissing off any chance they have of signing Galloway to a long-term deal. He would merely take the field – with a questionable desire to try- and play out the remainder of his contract. At season's end, he would walk away from the Seahawks as a free agent. Any effort by the team to designate him a "franchise" player would only exacerbate his resolve to play elsewhere. And for Seattle, it wouldn't end there. The team would immediately be viewed by other free agents as unfriendly to players. No agent in his right mind would let one of his clients sign with Seattle. This would spell doom to the Seahawks ability to compete. For all these reasons, we the fans will be enduring contract holdouts for a long time to come. See ya next week.
